WALT IS BACK

January 30, 2010

Start the New Year expanding your horizons. WALT begins registrations for its 10th Anniversary schedule of classes on January 30. Williamsburg Area Learning Tree (WALT) is where neighbors share their talents and interests with neighbors. WALT offers an assortment of classes on the most wonderful topics, more than 50 unique classes are offered this Spring. This is your chance to open your mind and try your hand at something new in classes such as Billiards, Beading, Bird Identification or Beer Appreciation. These are pursuits you have always wanted to try and now is the time. Enjoy learning from wonderful instructors who want to share their interests with you. All classes are open to everyone in the community, young and the not so young. WALT is a non-profit, public service project of the Williamsburg Unitarian Universalists. A complete schedule of classes will be available at the W/JCC libraries and posted on line at www.wuu.org/walt. For more information, please call Jill Whitten - 757-220-9975
